

Mesoscale modeling of macromolecular machines

Michael Levitt

Department of Structural Biology
Stanford School of Medicine

This talk will cover the work of the Levitt Lab all directed towards large-scale modeling of mesoscale modeling of macromolecular machines. It will focus an approach specially designed to model the structure and dynamics of large macromolecular nano-machinery.